

CHICAGO, April 29, 2010
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

HANDLER THAYER, LLP Family Office 2010 Outlook

Handler Thayer's Advanced Planning & Family Office Practice Group finds:

- Escalating grave concern at the prospect of greater U.S. government intervention and regulation;
- More extensive due diligence reviews and concomitant elongated lead times for financial managers and professional advisors to be engaged;
- Continued proliferation of all types of family offices: VFOs, SFOs and MFOs and increased collaboration among them;
- Increased focus on comprehensive risk management, particularly insurance coverage, captive insurance companies, premarital planning and asset protection planning; and
- Additional emphasis on integrated tax management and securities compliance with the increasing globalization of families and their holdings.

As the family office industry continues to develop and mature, increasing resources are being directed toward achieving comprehensive risk management as a key component in long-term wealth management. This theme has been researched and introduced by the three major U.S. based family office associations: Family Office Exchange, Family Wealth Alliance and Family Office Association. Fundamental to the protection of the interests of affluent families is the thoughtful risk management of business operations, investments, tax planning, conduct and travel. Premarital planning, asset protection planning and the establishment of "start-over again" funds are critical aspects of comprehensive risk management.

"Family offices have proliferated as families of means have endeavored to achieve greater security for their businesses, financial assets and loved ones," noted Thomas J. Handler, a partner in Handler Thayer, LLP and Chairman of the firm's Advanced Planning & Family Office Practice Group. "Accordingly, in the last 20 years there has been an explosion of virtual family offices (VFOs), single family offices (SFOs) and multi-family offices (MFOs) focused on helping families achieve these goals."

In pursuit of best practices, sophisticated governance models, family constitutions, family by-laws, and conduct protocols are being developed and adopted. At the same time, an emerging advanced planning protocol has been created to facilitate the integration of family offices and their estate plans, tax positions, governance and succession plans focused on achieving best in class legal structures and optimization strategies.

The family office industry has a wide variety of educational conferences designed to introduce family members, family offices and family office professionals to a wide array of products and services developed for the family office marketplace. Mr. Handler is a nationally prominent advanced planning attorney and a frequent lecturer at wealth management, advanced estate planning and family office conferences around the world.

Mr. Handler will be speaking at four upcoming family office conferences in the United States:

- He will be presenting Mitigating Legislative, Registration and Operational Risk in Single Family Offices at the Family Office Association Spring Global Summit in Greenwich, Connecticut, April 29, 2010.
